The Sunday Liquor-Law-Its View by Temperance Men. To the Editors of the Dispatch: From : knowledge of the views of some of the most stendfast, intelligent, and sound-thinking temperatee men in this city and State I am sure I but relierte their sentiments upon this vexed question ween I make the statement that they are opposed to any legislation with the view of suppressing intemperance. Temperance organizations may cause its amelioration to some extent; but it will not amelioration to some extent; but it will not be until the moral tone of society shall place awakened to the awful peril in which they already delivered that they had continually stand, and rotuntarily give up a habit which destroys both soul and body, that we may reasonably hope for its suppres sion. In the opinion of temperance men, the suppression of the traffic in whiskey on Sunday would not lessen the average consumption of it; but, upon the ground of law and order, the bar-rooms and liquor-skops might be closed with the same propriety as they are upon the days when elections are held.

Upon this latter ground, then, society might claim the same protection as the voter in exercising his right of franchise; for it is notorious that upon Sunday more arrests are made for "drunkenness and disorderly conduct" than nearly for the rest of the week combined. Admi'ting this statement to be entirely correct, the question suggests itself. Does this increased number of arrests arise so much from the habit of Sunday drinking as from the fact that by an almost universal practice laboring men have their wages paid them on Saturday or Saturday night? Frequently this hard-earned money is gone before Sunday morning; nor is all swallowed up in the bar-reom; it is here that various forms of vice begin to crop out, but it is in other haunts that the poor, maddened, and besotted victim is fleeced out of his last cent.

In the cities of Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and other large European cities, Sunday is the working man's holiday. The museums, conservatories, libraries, and public gardens are thrown open for the instruction and amusement of the people. But it is in the latter places especially that the workingman finds the most unfeigned enjoyment. He here sips his light wine or beer, consoled, refined, and softened by music from the finest musical bands in the world. His family may accom-pany him, and after a day spent in innocent enjoyment they return home with lighter hearts and relavigorated by a day of recreation and pleasure. It is but fair to say, however, that such are not a whiskey-drinking people. If in these gardens the fearful bowie-krife leaped from its scabbard or the murderous revolver was drawn upon the slightest provocation, no doubt upon the ground of law and order, such establishments would be closed by their respective governments. Now, sir, no sound-thinking temperance man in Virginia desires that any Quixotic campaign shall be inaugurated against intemperance. Its extinction must be left to time and the revolution of public sentiment. I am, sir, with great respect, A TEMPERANCE MAN.

(The author of the foregoing is a prominent member of a temperance order.] FEBRUARY 21, 1874.

Messrs. Editors,-You ask editorially in your issue of this morning, "Do General Hawley, Mr. Boteler, and Governor Mc-Cormick receive any pay for their services as centennial commissioners?"

I answer, triefly, that they do not. Genera Hawley and Governor McCormick are members of Congress, and to receive pay as congressmen and as centennial commissioners too might do them an injury. Mr. Boteler Evening,—Money casy at 4@5. Sterling dull at is well known to the people of Virginia as 485. Gold more active at 112%@112%. Governan ex-member of the old Congress and of ments and states steady. the Confederate Congress. Neither he nor any member of the centennial commission receive any compensation whatever-either $3,000 or any other sum. The commission has two salaried officers, the secretary and director-general, both members of the comanission, who, as officers, are required to be in Philadelphia at the office, and consequently are paid a salary.

I am glad to infer from another article in same issue that the Dispatch is now not against the exhibition and celebration, but only desires that it shall be held in Washingtor. Very truly, W. W. WOOD, Commissioner from Virginia.

What a Baltimorean Says.

Editors Dispatch,—After a thoughtful perusal of "W.'s" article, in your paper of 14th, in which he speaks of the twisting of Uncle Paul's mouth by sleeping in the moonlight, and its subsequent cure by the administration of two drinks of whiskey, I am led to take up just enough of your space.

Why They Refuse us Currency. NEW YORK, February 17, 1874.

Editors Dispatch : I am a southern man, living here in this community, and understand perfectly why some of the rich people here desire to keep the South from getting her proportion or an increase in currency. They will refuse to give up any of their circulation, and try to keep the South from getting any, so that they can lend what they have at a higher rate of interest. The South ought to have more banks, that what money is down there might be deposited and could be lent to others who were in want of it.

The Farmvil'e Mercury is not done with Lynchburg. Hear it :

For the Lynchburg Republican .- It is beyoud dispute that the Devil was born at Lynchburg. His Satanic Majesty still carries on business, and has placed his children round in the newspaper offices up there, Sensible Fellow - Dr. Bagby. Lynchburg could not capture him. TO CURE A RUNAWAY HORSE.-A correspondent of the Prairie Farmer tells "how he cured a runaway herse" on which all previous prescriptions had been tried in vain. At last he observed that the fiery, untamed steed never gave bim any trouble at night particularly if it was quite dark. On this hint he ac'ed. He made a hood of leather, and attached it to the head-stall in such a way that by pulling a cord the hood came down and completely cut off his view. NEW YORK COTTON STATEMENT.

New York, February 21.—The market for cotton on the street ruled weak and depressed, and a greater portion of the sales were on speculative account. Shippers have not operated to any extent, though quotations were sustained until Thursday, when Liverpool news was unfavorable, and quotations were revised, which reduced prices &c.; at which the market closed weak. Forward deliveries have generally been depressed. Thursday there was a bad break, and prices rapidly declined, and no improvement has been noted since, there being no more sellers than buyers. The total sales of the week were 124,491 bales; of which 111.250 bales were for forward delivery, and 13,241 for immediate delivery—as follows: 3.231 bales for export, 2.476 bales for spinning, 6,574 bales for speculation, and 960 bales in transit. Arthur Bonnicastle is the most mature and finished prose work of its popular author. The great lesson of the book is self-respect and self-reliance: the evil influence of dependence being exemplified in different characters and circumstances by the youth of Arthur and the life of Peter Mullens. For character-drawing, purpose, pathos, style. and saver of the soil, Arthur Bonnicastle is remarkable among the noveks of the time.
